A NOTE FROM THE DIRECTOR

"If you can read, even if you can't afford education, you can go on and learn about anything you want to know. There's a book on everything."

—Dolly Parton

"I was rescued by librarians everywhere I went. Librarians saved my internal life."

—Gloria Steinem

The passing of Dolly Parton and Gloria Steinem is deeply felt by those of us who believe in the power of books, learning, and the people who make knowledge accessible to all. Their words remind me of why I chose a career in public libraries and why this work matters. Dolly understood that a book could open up a world of possibilities to any child or person, regardless of circumstance. Gloria understood that a librarian and the public library could offer safety, inspiration, and a lifeline when someone needed it most.

At the Patchogue-Medford Library, I see these values reflected in our work every day. We strive to ensure that everyone in our community has access to knowledge, opportunity, connection, and a welcoming place to belong. Their legacies remind us that a library is more than a building or a collection of books; it is a promise to our community that everyone deserves the chance to learn, grow, and imagine what is possible.

Come visit us and discover what's possible at your Library! We continue to be grateful for this beautiful district we serve and for your participation and support. Enjoy a peaceful holiday season.

Warm regards,
Danielle Paisley
